

1.5.2 Preview

In this lesson, you'll build another `<section>` of the page: the "Meet the Trainers" section. This one contains three similar pieces of content, so expect a fair amount of repetition. Because of that repetition, the lesson is a good opportunity to practice what you've learned so far while also picking up some new skills along the way.

As usual, the Run Buddy design team has given us a mock-up:

Meet The Trainers

Arron Stephens

Speed / Strength

Lorem ipsum, dolor sit amet consectetur adipisicing elit. Sequi neque animi quo cupiditate commodi saepe culpa sed itaque velit maiores optio dolorem excepturi aperiam dolores, voluptatibus suscipit amet quis repellat!

Joanna Gill

Endurance

Lorem ipsum, dolor sit amet consectetur adipisicing elit. Sequi neque animi quo cupiditate commodi saepe culpa sed itaque velit maiores optio dolorem excepturi aperiam dolores, voluptatibus suscipit amet quis repellat!

Harry "The Headband" Smith

Strength

Lorem ipsum, dolor sit amet consectetur adipisicing elit. Sequi neque animi quo cupiditate commodi saepe culpa sed itaque velit maiores optio dolorem excepturi aperiam dolores, voluptatibus suscipit amet quis repellat!

At first glance, this might look like a daunting amount of content and style, so let's break it down into steps. Here's what we'll do:

1. Set up the HTML. You'll make both HTML and CSS edits to the overall `<section>` element that holds this content.
2. Build the first trainer's HTML. You'll reinforce your HTML skills by creating the structure that will be copied to the other trainer sections.
3. Add CSS to the first trainer. You'll use floats to position the trainer images and bios side-by-side.

4. Add the other trainers. You'll take what you learned in steps 2 and 3 and create the other two trainers' HTML content and CSS style.

Sound easy? Let's get to it!
