

5.3.1 Introduction

In the previous lesson, you implemented several Bootstrap classes to expand the Taskmaster app, as the following screenshot shows:

We now have four status columns—To Do, In Progress, In Review, and Done—but there's currently no way to move a task from one column to another. Clearly, we should be able to mark "Learn Bootstrap layouts" as done now!

Per the client's request, changing a task's status is accomplished by dragging and dropping the task element. In this lesson, we'll explore other third-party libraries to help us get there.

During this lesson, you'll learn how to:

- Incorporate additional CDN links into a project.
- Skim new documentation to quickly learn about new tools.
- Use jQuery extensions to enable draggable elements.
